Traditionally, mehndi is applied to the skin in intricate patterns, which stain the skin temporarily in shades of orange, red, or brown. The art of applying mehndi is called mehndi or henna art, and it has been practiced for thousands of years, believed to bring good luck and positivity.

Historically, these designs served both decorative and symbolic purposes.

Many ancient civilizations, including the Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans, crafted necklaces with hammered metal techniques. These designs often denoted social status or spiritual significance, with intricate patterns symbolizing protection, power, or divine favor.

- African and Asian Traditions:

In African and Asian cultures, blows neck designs are integral to traditional attire. For example, certain African tribes use hammered metal beads and pendants in their jewelry, which are believed to ward off evil spirits or signify tribal identity.

- Soldering and Assembly:

Many blows neck pieces involve assembling multiple hammered components, such as pendants, chains, and connectors, through precise soldering techniques to ensure durability and aesthetic cohesion.

- Polishing and Finishing:

After shaping, the jewelry undergoes polishing to enhance its texture and luster, often contrasting matte and shiny finishes to emphasize depth and detail.

Materials and Their Impact on Design

- Metals:

Gold (yellow, white, or rose), silver, bronze, and copper are common. Each metal responds differently to hammering, influencing texture and color.
